

As seen from the above screenshot, the difference between running the command ng build and ng serve --open, is that ng build created a new file called “dist”, when it was executed. When I read about it on the internet, it is because ng serve does not write build but it builds artifacts from memory, whereas ng build builds artifacts in the “dist” folder.